F. f. Gr. Φ, φ. Ang. F, f. Heb. ף, & in fine vocum ף: five, ut nonnullis placet, ו litera Hebræorum (uti hæc Latinorum) ſexta, Græcis itidem ſenarii nota, ὀπίσημον Βαῦ dicta. Sanè iſtud & loci & ordinis ratio comprobare videtur; verùm, ſi rem ipſam ſpectemus, F magis exprimit ה Raphatum, quum πρὸ ו ἀναλόγως reſpondeat V conſona, quæ nonnullis exinde Vau dicitur. Utut ſit, liquidò paret eam è numero mutarum eſſe, idque in primo ordine; π, β, φ. p, b, f & v: f, inquam, quæ aſpirat tenuem p, & v, quæ mediam b. Ratio conſtat, quòd ſpiritus non mutet poteſtatem literæ, quod benè monuit Priſcianus. Proinde ſi χ ch & θ th in iiſdem ſedibus reponantur cum κ & τ, quarum ſunt aſpiratæ; non minùs erit & f muta, putà φ, quæ ἀντίστοιχος eſt πρὸ π· quicquid contrà ſubtiliter, ſed non æquè ex vero diſputet magnus Scaliger. Nec enim, quòd ſonet ef, poſitâ ante conſonam vocali, uti el, em, en dicitur; id arguit ſemivocalitatem hujuſce literæ, ſed inſcitiam potiùs & ſemiſupinitatem Grammaticorum oſtendit, qui & poterant & debebant fe dixiſſe, ſicut dixere pe; quomodò & Græci Pi & Phi ſub duabus figuris, & Hebræi ſimiliter Pe & Phe ſub unâ appellitarunt. Neque verò apud Græcos ipſos incipiunt vocabula ſemivocalium à vocali, quod Latinè factum; ut hæc una ratio non ſit idonea cenſenda prorſus, cur f ſit ſemivocalibus accenſenda. Alia ſunt argumenta, quæ poſſent in hanc militiam conſcribi, ſi opus foret. Unum duntaxat proferam. F ponitur ante ſemivocales l & r in eâdem ſyllabâ, ut fluctus, fructus; ergo ipſa ſemivocalis non eſt: cùm ſemivocalibus nefas ſit ita cõnſociari, ſi duas excipias m & n, utpote intimè cognatas, idque in Græcis nimirum vocibus. Figuram ſuam F vel Hebræo ף reflexo acceptam refert, quod magis etiam firmat minuſcula f inflexo & rotundato paullùm capite; vel, ſi lubet etiam, Græco Φ, ſemicircello poſteriori penitûs ablato, & anteriore in duas lineolas divulſo. Fortean non deerunt, qui accerſant ex epiſemo, quod diximus Βαῦ; quod tametſi ſcribatur ϝ (quo pacto σ & τ compendii gratiâ conjungi ſolent) tamen ortum habuit ex Heb. ו reflexo, cujus & valorem in numeris retinet; ut quod ϛάγιον Græci dicunt, id ſit ἑξάγιον, Latinis ſextula. Aliud eſt, quod magis urget: nempe, F nihil aliud eſſe quàm Æolicum Digamma, h. e. Gamma unum impoſitum alteri. Eſto; per me licet. Verùm à Latinis hominibus magis graphicè expreſſa eſt figura duplicis Γ, quæ conſpicuè ſeſe exhibet in F; quàm ab Æolibus factum erat, qui operoſiùs circumactum Γ & in caput reclinatum demum geminarunt; ſic, ⅁. At enim ſi poteſtatem ad partes vocemus, Digamma iſtud ſolens in v tranſit, ut ὄϝις ovis, οἶϝον vinum, &c. rarenter in f mutatur. Utique φ ferè in Latinis vocibus fit f; ut φήμη, Doricè φάμα fama, φυγὴ fuga, φὼρ fur. Intereà non negem aliquid ſortaſſis intercedere diſcriminis inter ph & f, in ipſo quidem ſono; putà, quòd f non tam fixis labris proferatur quàm ph, cùm ad ſpiritalem magis naturam accedat, (cujus rei teſtis hebris olim dicta, quæ nunc febris;) unde factum, ut m, quod ob pinguiorem ſonum ph ante ſe admittit, cùm præponi debeat πρὸ f, ad attenuandam iſtam, quam dixi, ſoni pinguitudinem, mutetur priùs in n; ut anfractus. Spiritalem iſtam, cujus memini, vim complura è converſo exempla comprobant. Fœdus, fordeum, foſtis, foſtia, ſonabant antiquis, quæ poſteà, hœdus, hordeum, hoſtis, hoſtia. Eſt hoc ſolenne Hiſpanis, ut f in h ferè convertant. Quid quòd nonnunquam pro ipsâ aſpiratione τῷ ῥ ponitur f; ut ῥήσσω, fut. 2. ῥαγῶ frago, & n inſerto frango. Porrò ut φ mutatur in p, ut ἀφύη apua; in b, ut ἄμφω ambo; in v, ut φάτις vates; & in f, ut antè oſtenſum: ſic viciſſim f ant ph ponitur pro p, ut πήγω figo, τρόπαιον trophæum; & pro b, ut βρέμω fremo, θρίαμβος triumphus. Neque verò aliæ conſonantes d, ſ & x ſaltem in præpoſitionibus ad, dis & ex ante verba à literâ f incipientia hanc ſubire mutationem dedignantur; ut affero, diffundo, effugio. Et hæc quidem de literâ f aſſatim dicta ſufficiant.

Fūtutor, ōris; m. verb. Mart.

Fūtutrix; f. verb. Mart.

† Fuvi; prat. ant. à Fuo: Qui parentes fuverint, Plaut.

G, g. Gr. Γ, γ. Heb. ג. Angl. G, g. Litera muta medii ordinis media; cujus tamen locum invasit C, ut pro βγδ b c d diceretur: quippe quòd hæc litera ignota esset veteribus Latinis, adjecta demùm à Sp. Carvilio, quod ait Plutarchus; unde & novam consonam vocat Diomedes. Itaque apud antiquos pro g ubique c ponebatur, quod vel Columna Duiliana evicerit. Enimverò c ità ipsius g vices obiit, ut interdum monente Fabio per g sonaret, ut in Caius à Γαΐος, amurca ab ἀμυργὴ. Hebræi appellant גימל Gimel, à גמל gamal, camelus, ob gibbum sive eminentiam dorsi; ex cujus vocis formâ emphaticâ gamla Græci suum efformarunt Γάμμα, cum nomine unâ & figuram mutuati sed inversam & mutilatam, recisâ nimirum caudâ in majusculâ, in minusculâ autem truncato capite. G. Latinorum propiùs ad cognatam C accedit, aut, si malimus ab ipsis fontibus arcessere, ad Hebræorum ק (cui affinis ק respondet) quod ipsum Græcorum ϗόππα inde traductum testatur, figurâ literæ G propè expressum. Expulsa suis sedibus G migravit in aliam viciniam, inter f & h locata, quibuscum magna ipsi intercedit necessitudo. Quid erat magis naturæ consentaneum, quàm ut Digamma f & simplex Gamma g & spiritus h sese mutuo consequerentur? Primùm de his dicam. Est ubi γ pro digammâ ponatur; ut pro ἄϝστε, ἄντες, (unde vestis, venter) corrupte pro ἕσσης, ἔντερον, apud Hesychium scribitur γέστις, γάντερ· similiter pro ἕλεος μῶς dictum γλεως, inde Glis. E contrà h pro g ponitur; ut à γίννος hinnus, à δέγλεων fut. 2. δέγλω trabo, unde rursus g redeunte postliminio tragula. Sanè g, quomodò & hodie pronunciant Germani, ita aspiratè sonuit, ut in nonnullis vocibus penè evanesceret; cujus rei indicio sunt isthæc nostratia, flagellum a flail, tegula a tile, regula a rule, erigere to rear, rugire to roar, &c. Redeo ad proprium ordinem, κ γ χ. G & C mutuas operas tradunt. Nam ut à γόγσεος congrus: quæ Græcè γαμήλιοι παῖ ex, Festo teste, Latinè Camilæ virgines audiunt; à jungo juncus, à pertingo pertica, à viginti vigesimus & vicesimus: sic vice versâ à κύκνος cygnus, à κώβιος gobius, à κόμμι gummi, à κυβερνῶ guberno, à seco segmen, à centum quingenti, ex nec & otium negotium. Itidem & χ in g mutatur; ut χαλβάνη galbanum, κυλίχνη culigna, ἄγχω ango, ὄνυξ ὄνυχος unguis. Porrò G vitio temporum æmulata est cognatam C etiam in soni corruptelâ: sicut enim c ante e & i sonat ut s, ità & g ante easdem sonat ut j consona vel zh. Sed is purus putus Gothismus puriori Latinitatis ævo inauditus. Pergimus. Duæ reliquorum mediæ non respuunt subire istam mutationem, b dico & d saltem in præpp. ad & sub; ut aggero, suggero: etiam p vernaculè; ut pipiones Pigeons, vipiones Wigeons. Dicunt g in s mutari, ut spargo sparsi; verùm s istud characteristicum erat temporis; nempe σπαρῶ, Æol. fit σπάρσω, ut ab ὄρω ὄρσω. Idem & de duplici x affirmant, ut rego rexi, sicut è conversò grex gregis. Illud magis mirum inter g & alteram duplicem ϗ tam benè convenire, ut gingiber & ζιγγίβερι penè ex æquo dicatur. Quam familiater g utatur liquidâ n, vel hinc patet, quòd in iis vocibus, ubi γ præcedit κ γ χ vel ξ, istud prius γ Græcè sonat ut n, Latine verò vertitur in n; ut ἄγγελος angelus, ἄγγυρα anchora, Ἀγχίσης Anchises, Σφίγξ Sphinx: quanquam veteres etiam, inter quos Attius, Græcos imitati scripserint: Agchises, agcora; ipsâ n ante g vel c in g conversâ; ut accipe, iggerunt, pro anceps, ingerunt. Aliud majus argumentum est hujusce, quam dixi, familiaritatis; quòd g gaudet subsequi literam n; ut in compositis à centum, quadringenti, quingenti, &c. (ubi c post n mutatur in g, quod aliàs non fit, ut ducenti, sexcenti, &c.) gaudet item præcedere, ut gnosco, gnotus, gnavus, quam tamen alii malunt Prosthesin dicere. At si originem harum vocum inspicias, magis erit dicenda Aphæresis, cùm scribas absque g, quàm Prosthesis, cùm per g. Nempe à γνόσκω, γνωτὸς, γναῖος ortum suum habent. Interim non negem γ à Græcis nonnullibi prosthericè præmitti, ut γνόφος, à νέφος, γλάμα à λήμη· sed à Latinis etiam aliubi abjici aio; ut ab antiquo γλὰξ γλακτὸς lac lactis, docente Salmasio; à γλυκαντὴς lucunter genus operis pistorii, aiente Festo; & nè longus sim, à πυγμαλίων pumilio.

H, n. Gr. Η, η. Heb. ה. Angl. Eȳ, h. Priſcianus, quo jure mox videbimus, è numero literarum eliminat, conſensus meram aſpirationis notam dixiſſe, affirmans porrò nihil aliud habere literæ niſi figuram; quod non ſufficit ut elementum putetur: quippe eo pacto, inquit, etiam numerorum figuræ in elementorum cenſum venirent. Porrò eam ideò poteſtate carere aſſeverat, quià nec vocalis nec conſonans eſſe poteſt: non vocalis, quià à ſe vocem non facit, non ſemivocalis, quòd nulla ſyllaba in eam deſinat; neque muta, cùm in eâdem ſyllabâ cum duabus mutis bis ponitur, ut in Phthiſis, Erechtheus. Ergò magiſtro noſtro judice h jus alphabeti amiſit, excluſiſſima & tantùm non expirans, cùm ipſe aſpirandi munus ei conceſſerit. Verùm poſtulamus vindicias ſecundùm libertatem. Quòd ſit aſpiratio, non facit quo minùs ſit cenſenda litera; cùm hoc ipſum, quòd aſpiret, ſit magnæ ac indubiæ poteſtatis argumentum. Etenim diverſa poteſtas diverſas literas conſtituit. Quid enim litera, niſi ſoni peculiaris nota, & pars ſyllabæ individua? quòd utrumque de h verè affirmari poteſt. Quid Hebræi? qui non modò denſiores & craſſiores ſpiritus ע & ר, cui noſtrum H reſpondet, ſed & exiliores & leniores א & ה, qui ſæpiculè inter pronunciandum evaneſcunt nec audiuntur, in ſorie tamen elementari conſtanter locarunt. Quid Græci? apud quos olim H noſtro H per omnia ſimile, idem officium præſtitit; ut Ηεκατὸν pro ἑκατὸν centum, & ante φ χ θ à Palamede vel Simonide inventas ΠΗ, ΚΗ, & ΤΗ ſcriberent, quod faciunt Latini, quibus deſunt ea ſcriptionis compendia. Quod de numeralibus figuris dixi, miror eum non advertiſſe, eas non eſſe ſonorum ſed vocum notas; v. g. I. unum. 2. duo. 3. tria, &c. Quid hoc ad literam h, cujus figura repræſentat diſtinctum ſonum? Induco jam ipſam inductionem, quâ eam ex omni ſede deturbat. Non eſt h vocalis, fateor; quanquam vocalium aſſidua miniſtra: non erit ergò conſonans? Non eſt ſemivocalis; utique nec s, utut illa ratio vera ſit, neque enim in illam eadem alia ſyllabâ deſinit: ergo non erit muta? Etenim Martinianæ ſententiæ vis auſim accedere, ſemivocalem eam eſſe, quòd proximè ad naturam vocalium accedat. Si ipſius indolem propiùs inſpiciamus, ſi quas colit affinitates ad calculos vocemus; inter mutas ſuo jure reponemus. At in quo ordine, inquies? Dicam, ut potero. κ, γ, χ ſibi mutuò ἀντιστοίχως reſpondent. Quid illud χ niſi fortis & vehemens aſpiratio, qualis h? in quam & tranſit ſæpiùs; ut χάω hio, χάσκω hiſco, χαμαλὲ humilis, &c. Firmat hanc conjecturam, quòd ut κω, γω, χω Græcis faciunt futurum in ξω, ita co, go & ho Latinis formant præteritum in xi; ut dico dixi, rego rexi, traho traxi: à δάκνω δήξω, ὀρέγω ὄρεξω, δρέχω fut. 2. à δρέκω δρέξω. Itaque h figuram ſuam quidem τῷ ι acceptam refert, poteſtatem autem τῷ χ. Porrò quàm ſiculna iſthæc ratio, quâ probare voluit Grammaticorum princeps h non eſſe mutam; quòd in eadem ſyllabâ cum duabus mutis bis ponitur? Quid hinc ſequitur? nimirùm abſurdum eſſe, ut quatuor mutæ in eandem ſyllabam conveniant. Rectè. At poſſunt duæ. Non perſpexit vir egregius id fieri tantùm in Græcis vocibus; aſpiratas autem illas φ χ θ, quas Latinè ph ch th ſcribimus (quomodò & veteres lonas ante inventa illa compendia ſcripſiſſe dudum monui) ſimplices eſſe literas æquè ac π κ τ, (quibus ſunt ἀντίστοιχοι·) atque adeò non minùs rectè dici φθῖσις, χθές, quàm πλῶσις, κλείς. Faceſſat ergò illa decantatiſſima nænia, H non eſſe literam. At in carmine, inquis, id omninò erit concedendum; propterea quòd poſitionem non faciat. Reſpondet Martinius, ejus ſubtilitatem ſive ſpiritualitatem in causâ eſſe, cur id non fiat. Reſpondeo & ego, ſi illud obtineat, ut h non ſit litera, quòd ejus in re metricâ nulla ratio habeatur; pariter agi oportere cum literâ m. quæ unà cum vocali ſuâ perimitur, ſi ſequens dictio incipiat à vocali. Idque multo magis dicendum de literâ s, quam in fine vocis etiam ſequente conſonâ elidere antiquis poëtis quà Græcis quà Latinis in more poſitum erat. Quid ergò? An h, quià initio vocis negligitur, quò minùs fiat poſitio, non erit litera; s autem erit litera, quæ ob eandem cauſam in fine negligebatur? Nam utrinque par ratio eſt, ſi dicamus h merum eſſe ſpiritum, & ſ merum eſſe ſibilum; ac proinde neutram eſſe verè literam. Addo ſpiritum illum, quem h ex Græco exprimit, ſæpiſſimè in ſibilum iſtum tranfire; v. g. ἧμι ſemi, ἕξ ſex, ἑπτὰ ſeptem, &c. quod ideò moneo, ut intelligamus h & s non ità diſpares eſſe, ut non in comparationem veniant. Revertor ad initia. H Latinum factum ex Græco Η cujus & munia antiquitùs obibat, uti ſuperiùs oſtenſum; poſteà pro e longo uſurpatum eſt, unde extenſum vocalem vocat D. Hieronymus. Olim enim Ε Græcè tam pro e longo quàm pro brevi ponebatur, quod etiamnum Latinè fit. Teſtatur hoc divinus ſcriptor in Cratylo; ὑ γὰρ ἢ ἐχόμεθα, inquit, ἀλλὰ ἓ τὸ παλαιόν. Nempe non adhibebant priſci η pro vocali, ſed pro aſpiratione duntaxat; cujus rei exempla jam ante poſui. Hanc aſpirandi vim ei nativam & genuinam fuiſſe ipſa ejus arguit origo ex Hebræorum ה, quam, originem inquam, & nomen & ordo & figura comprobant. ה He; Ε, εἶ· ו Vau; ϛ, ϛαῦ δίσημον· ז Zain; Ζ, ζῆτα. ח Hheth; Η, ἦτα· ט Teth; Θ, θῆτα· καὶ. Primitùs igitur η aſpirabat, aſcripta vocalibus extrinſecùs, tribus autem mutis, quas dixi, π κ τ, intrinſecùs; at poſtquàm vocalis eſſe cœperat, ex majuſculâ H divisâ efficti ſunt duo ſpiritus; quippe dextra pars lenem, aſperum ſiniſtra indicabat: nam antè lenis ex abſentiâ alterius intelligebatur. Latinum h vocalibus quibuſvis præponitur; ut hamus, herus, hio, homo, humus, hyems; ſubjicitur autem tribus mutis p c t, & ſemivocali r; idque duntaxat in Græcis vocibus; ut Philippus, Chremes, Thraſo, Pyrrhus. Sanè antiquos nuſquam niſi in vocali aſpiratione uſos affirmat Cicero; quare Purrum ſemper Ennius non Pyrrhum dixit, & Fruges pro Phryges. Quin & Servius monet in tribus tantùm nominibus ch reperiri, viz. ſepulchrum, orchus, pulcher: verùm in his nulla erat aſpirandi cauſa; nam ſepulcrum dici debuit ut fulcrum, orcus à Gr. ὄρκος dictum, & pulcer à φαλακρὸς calvus, ut contrà à καλὸς ipſum calvus. Sed pravus uſus obtinuit in quamplurimis aliis, anchora, lachryma, &c. Addit Gellius additam aſpirationem, quòd crederent ſonum firmiorem reddi & vegetiorem. Hinc apud veteres honera, honuſtus, &c. hinc præcipuè factum, ut mediâ voce interſereretur: ut æntus reſolutâ diphthongo æhneus, pro vemens vehemens, & incobo antiquis quod nunc inchoo. Eſt tamen ubi abjicitur. Sanè indifferenter ſcribitur alluctinor & halluctinor, &c. De mirâ ejus convenientiâ cum ſ, vide F. Addo & de b. quam nos Helenam, priſci Elitnam vocabant, ſi Quintiliano fides.

I, i. Gr. Ι, ι. Heb. י. Angl. J, j. Eſt & conſonans & vocalis; atque adeò duplicem figuram pro duplici poteſtate ſortita eſt; quo privilegio etiam V gaudet: quippe quòd ambæ Hebræis pariliter vocalium aliquando vice fungantur, ubi tamen non variatur figura. Oportebat ſanè aliter ſcribi Maius menſis & Pompeius, aliter Majus à major & pejus: verum hæc diſtinctio parùm obſervatur ab ipſis Typographis, ſcriptoribus volui dicere. Conſonans J, j, Jod dicitur nomine Hebraico יוד, Chald. יודא Yoda, unde Græcum Ἰῶτα. Hoc autem ab יד manus & ſpatium; quòd hæc litera manum in pugnum ſcil. contractam repræſentet, & ſpatium ſubtùs vacuum relinquat. Hebræis ſonat ut y conſona; quomodò Germani & aliæ aliquot gentes iis conterminæ pronunciant, quomodò & veteres Romani abſque dubio proculêre; quod & patet ex ſcriptione Græcâ. Nam cùm Græci hujuſmodi conſonâ carerent, adhibuerunt vocalem ſuam ι, quæ proximè accederet ad eam ſonum; ut יעקב Ἰακὼβ, Janus Ἰᾶνος. Malè ergò hodiè proferuntur à quibuſdam, imò compluribus, Hebraicè & diſcentibus & docentibus י ut j conſona, quæ ſonare debet ut y; v. g. גוים gentes, go-jim pro go-yim. Ne hoc quidem æquum eſt fieri, cùm י dageſſatum ſit; ut איש ay-je, ubi; non aj-je, vel ad-je. Fateor apud Latinos aliam eſſe rationem, præſertim in iis vocibus, quæ Græcam originem habent; ut Ζεῦ πάτερ Jupiter, ζυγὸς in Acc. ζυγὸν jugum; quòd in hiſce & hujuſcemodi J ortum ex ζ variorem illum & fortiorem ſortèan habuerit ſonum. Et hoc erat in causâ, cur pro duplici conſonante haberetur; quanquam alii antiquam ſcriptionem pro causâ adferant; Maijus, pejus; ut ij hîc idem ſit quod י dageſſatum, cujus modò meminimus. Diſtinguunt tamen aliqui, duplicem eſſe in medio inter vocales duas ſitam; ut in Majus, pejus: ſimplicem verò tantùm initio vocis ante vocalem; ut in jugum, quòd ideò in compoſitione non facit poſitionem; ut bijugus primâ brevi, quadrijugis ſecundâ, utut ſequatur j conſona. Satis de literâ j conſonante dictum eſt. Dicamus aliquid de literâ vocali I, i. Sunt enim duæ literæ, quod benè monuit Priſcianus, ob diverſum ſonum & vim; adde sis & figuram. Exilitatem ſoni indicat gracilitas figuræ, quam eapropter Plato, qui non eſt dedignatus etiam literarum indolem ruſpari, πρὸς τὰ λεπτὰ, i. e. ad exprimendas res tenues & ſubtiles accommodam dixit. Quâ de causâ laudatur iſte verſus Virgilianus; Accipiunt inimicum imbrem, rimiſque fatiſcunt: qui hâc literâ ſæpiùs repetitâ confertiſſimus eſt. Nec minùs aptè idem Virgilius i in o mutavit, cùm diceret Olli ſubridens; quòd hæc vocalis ex ſuopte ingenio alienior ſit â riſu, cùm ore non multùm aperto nec diductis labris proferatur. Mira eſt ejus συμφωνία cum cæteris vocalibus, in quas ſæpè mutatur, quam vicem & ipſæ reponunt; quod aliàs dicemus commodiùs. Falluntur qui in Hieruſalem, Hieronymus, &c. i. putant eſſe conſonam & pronunciant ac ſi ſcriberetur Jeruſalem, Jeronymus: quinimo illa vocalis eſt ſpiritu aſpero notata, eodem prorsùs modo ſonans quo Græcè ἱερουσαλὴμ, ἱερώνυμος. Varias conſtituit diphthongos; ai, ut aio; ei, ut hei; oi, ut, hoi; ui, ut hui; & yi, ut Harpyia. Eſt & nota numeralis pro unitate poſita; quòd ἓν Græcè ſit μία una, vel quòd ſit linea ſingularis; in hunc modum; I, unum; II, duo; III, tria; IIII, quatuor; vel compendii gratiâ, IV, id eſt, quinque dempto uno. Quippe minor numerus ſequens majorem addit ſuum valorem, præcedens ſubtrahit; quâ regulâ tenetur & X; ut LX, ſexaginta, i. 50 & 10: XL, quadraginta, i. 50 ſublatis 10.

K, k. Gr. Κ, κ. Heb. כ & in fine vocum ך. Angl. k, k. Sola Mutarum nomen terminat in a, ut Ka audiat; quum reliquæ adsumant e ut Be, Ce, &c. Heb. dicitur כף Kaph, seu Caph. Ch. כפא Kappa, unde Gr. Κάππα. Significat autem curvaturam sive Volam manûs, quam & figurâ ap. Hebræos refert: cujus inferior pars demissa & protensa effecit ך finale; ex quo inverso factum Græcorum Κ· unde imminutâ formâ simul & incurvato latere recto κ. K, Lat. idem est cum Gr. Potestatem habet ferè cum c & q communem; quæ propterea ejus locum viciſſim occupant: ut à Κοτύλη Cœnum, ab ἐγκοτύλω, Inquino: (ſicut è converso κ Gr. ponitur pro c & q Lat. ut Cæſar, Καῖσαρ· Quartus, Κάρτος.) Verùm C ut plurimùm ejus vicem ſupplet, cùm ante vocales tum ante liquidas; & apud vett. eodem proculdubiò ſono; uti Cicero, Κικέρων, Plut. non ut hodiè corruptè pronunciant cùm alii plerique omnes, ac ſi eſſet ſcriptum Sifero, tum Itali ipſi, Chichero: quos & nos Angli æmulamur interdum; ut Cicer, a Chich-peaſe; Ceraſum, a Cherry: & ſane prout K effictum ex finali ך, ità C ſimiliter ex altero כ inverſo formatum. Itaque K nunc litera ſupervacua eſt, cùm C omnia ejus officia obeat. Enimverò antiquis erat in uſu, etiam pro ipſo C, quod patet ex 12 Tabb. & vett. ſaxis. Retinetur utcunque ejus aliqualis uſus in exprimendis vocibus merè Græcis, ut Κοινσμός, Quint. ſi Latinè ſcribas, Cœniſmus, &c. KAbbala, æ; f. ab Heb. קבלה i. acceptio, uti contra eadem dicitur, מסורה Maſora, i. traditio; doctrina ore tenus tradita à magiſtris, accepta à diſcipulis. παράδοσις. Tradition or myſterious knowledge delivered down alone from Moſes (who, in the Rabbins fancy, received it of God) to the Fathers, and ſo continued from hand to hand to poſterity. The Cabbaliſts were the Doctors of this Cabbaliſtical learning. Hence the Engliſh word Cuddal, a Jumbe of men, that ſit in cloſe counſel.

Kalendæ; ſive Calendæ, arum; f. à Calando, quòd ſacerdotes incunte quovis menſe calarent, i. indicerent Nonas; unde & Gr. per κ, Καλάνδαι. The Calends of a month, that is, The firſt day of every month, and ſo to be reckoned backward. V. The account of the Roman Month, Prov. Ad Græcas Kalendas. At later Lammas. i. never: becauſe the Greeks did not reckon by Calends. Kal. Mart. i. The firſt day of March.

Kalendarium, i; n. or Calendarium. A Kalender or Almanack.

Kyrie eleiſon, Eccl. ex Gr. Κύριε ἐλέησον, verſio 17, ut tum ſæpius, in 1 vel 3. Lord have mercy upon us. All form uſed in the Miſſal and other Latin Prayer-books, taken out of the Pſalms; יי רחם עלינו.

L l. Gr. Α, λ. Heb. ל, l. Consona semivocalis; quamobrem assumit e ante se (quod mutæ post se faciunt) ut El dicatur, quod & in cæteris fit, Em, En, Er. Heb. Lamed, Chald. Lamda: (à למר quod inter cætera sign. stimulum, quo incitantur boves; al. vero, cujus figuram refert hæc litera ל.) unde Gr. Λάμβδα, inserto β, & hinc rursus, subl'ato μ, Λάβδα: unde Λαβδοειδὴς, futura cranii in occipite, quæ utrinq; ad aures usq; procedit, q. d. Lambdiformis. Figuram mutatur à Græcâ, acuto angulo in rectum, & cruce altero in basin converso: quam basin abjecit minusculâ, sicuti Græca immisuto angulo apponit apicem, quo propiùs accedat ad Hebr. Porrò l sicut r molliter & cum aspiratione pronunciari solitum. Hinc factum ut antiqui Saxones & Gothi præponant h plurimis vocibus ab l incipientibus; uti Romani postponunt πρὸ r: Hispani autem & Cambri geminent ipsum ll initio, quod nobis sonat fl, illis bl. Hæc litera cùm sit liquida, adhæret mutis initio syllabarum; ut pleo, blandus, fluo; clamo, glos, Chloe; A-tlas, a-thleta. Excipiuntur tamen universim duæ mutæ, q & v, quibus hoc privilegium negatur præeundi liquidis. Sed neq; d mutam ante se pati ut liquida r vel n; neq; t quidem in latinis vocibus. Ubi l terminat syllabam in media voce, quamvis consonantem post se admittit, præter unam r: ut albus, ulcus, &c. Quanquam liquidæ etiam immurabiles dicitæ sint, tamen inter se permutari possunt: nam & n & r in l transeant; v. g. à νύμφη, nympha, lympha; ab ninus, ullus, &c. à liber, dim. libellus, i. liberulus; ut à puer, puerulus, puellus. Hinc factum dicit Priscianus, quem numerum Græci per ν signant, Latini per L literam exprimant. Præpositiones item in, inter & per, quibus ad etiam se adjungit, ante l positæ, suas finales consonas in similem mutant; ut illustris, intelligo, pelluceo, allatro. Deniq; figuræ similitudo inter Δ & Λ, quippe quæ solâ basi differunt, effecit, ut pro d ponatur l in aliquibus; e. g. δάκρυμα lacryma, ἄδακρυς alacris, Ὀδυσσεὺς ulysses, Gades Cales, Ægidius Giles.
